Statement

Kamilah is a mixed media artist working in D.C. and Maryland. She often employs bold color and dramatic brushstrokes to express social and political issues through both figurative and abstract art.

Her work is informed by her career as an attorney, her love for U.S. History and culture, the history and culture of the African Diaspora, current events, and her effort to build on commonalities among the world's many communities. Kamilah is passionate about black maternal mental health and, in 2020, she partnered with the Howard County, Maryland Library System and author Faye McCray, an online exhibition and workshop, called Dear Mama, to curate and provide informational healing on issues of Black Maternal Mortality and health concerns and the mental health crisis among mothers of African descent in the United States.

Her work has been exhibited and awarded at the Columbia Arts Center, the Hill Center in Washington, D.C., Harmony Hall in Fort Washington, Maryland, and Colorado.

It has also been collected throughout the United States and in several countries abroad.
